

ANZSIL and ICLC International Law Careers Seminar Series

Tuesday 25 and Wednesday 26 August

Online: 10am Central European Time/6pm Australian Eastern Standard Time/8pm New Zealand Standard Time

The Australian and New Zealand Society of International Law (ANZSIL) and the International Comparative Law Cluster (ICLC) at La Trobe Law School warmly invite you to a series of online seminars exploring careers in international law. Each seminar features two international lawyers from Australia and/or Aotearoa New Zealand who will share their experiences and discuss the diverse pathways from studying to working in international law. The seminars include opportunities for audience Q&A and will also be recorded and made available via the ANZSIL website as a resource for international law teachers, students and recent graduates. Please see below for the details of the first two seminars.

SPEAKER BIOS

Georgia Hinds is a Legal Adviser with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC), working on the legal and humanitarian implications of autonomous weapons, AI, drones and other new technologies of warfare. She has worked in the ICRC in various positions since 2017, including as Legal Adviser to Operations in Lebanon, the Philippines and the Pacific. Prior to joining the ICRC, Georgia worked in the Office of International Law, Australian Attorney-General's Department, advising the Australian Government on public international law including international humanitarian and human rights law, and international criminal law. She practiced as a solicitor in commercial law in Brisbane, Sydney and Singapore, and has also served as a Reservist Officer with the Australian Army. Georgia holds a Master of Laws in International Law (Distinction) from the Australian National University, a Bachelor of Laws (Hons) and a Bachelor of Arts from Griffith University and is admitted as solicitor of the Supreme Court of the Queensland and the High Court of Australia.

Catherine Drummond is a barrister at 3 Verulam Buildings (3VB) in London, specialising in public international law and international arbitration. She is regularly instructed in cases before the International Court of Justice, the European Court of Human Rights, the International Criminal Court, arbitration tribunals (inter-State, investor-State and commercial) and UN bodies, as well as UK courts on matters intersecting with international law. Her recent cases include acting for Belize in its territorial and maritime disputes against Guatemala and Honduras (ICJ); for the UK against the EU's challenge to marine conservation measures (inter-State arbitration); for Antigua and Barbuda in the Climate Change Advisory Opinion proceedings (ICJ); in an inter-State case involving ethnic discrimination and fair trial rights (ECtHR); for State interveners in four proceedings concerning Palestine (ICJ); for an NGO challenging weapons exports decisions (UK); and for investors challenging the assertion of State immunity to prevent the enforcement of an ICSID award (UK). Previously, Catherine practised at Freshfields in Paris. She has taught international dispute settlement in Brisbane, Paris and Cambridge, and presently lectures in the Master of International Dispute Settlement at the University of Geneva. Catherine holds a BA/LLB (Hons) (UQ) and an LLM (Class I) (University of Cambridge).

Phil Lynch is the Executive Director of the International Service for Human Rights, which supports human rights defenders in their work for freedom, equality, justice and accountability, and strengthens laws and mechanisms for their protection. Before joining ISHR in 2013, Phil founded and led the award-winning Human Rights Law Centre (2006-2012) and Homeless Law (2001-2005) in Australia. He is a member of the Global Board of the International Gender Champions and the Swiss Committee of World Bicycle Relief, and a former member of the EU Fundamental Rights Agency Advisory Board and the Australian Government Human Rights Grants Scheme Expert Panel. He has been conferred with numerous human rights and leadership awards. Phil commenced his legal career as a lawyer with Allens and holds an LLB (Hons) and an MPPM from the University of Melbourne.

Rebecca McMenamin has just completed a year-long Judicial Fellowship at the International Court of Justice, working with Australian Judge Charlesworth. Prior to that, she worked in international law academia in Europe, completing her Masters of Law at the University of Cambridge, working on her PhD at the University of Vienna, and lecturing in Vienna. She practiced human rights and constitutional law in New Zealand and clerked at the Supreme Court Te Koti te Mana Nui after graduating with a LLB(Hons)/BA from Victoria University of Wellington. She is returning to New Zealand to work as a barrister, and has been consulting on a potential international law claim by a Pacific Island and on international law aspects of climate rights litigation in New Zealand.
